Enovation

AI and Learning - Where should you start?

Enovation introduces the only executive workshop of its kind to help e-learning leaders shape their approach to AI.

As generative AI has taken the world by storm in 2023, it is imperative that organisations and institutions develop a responsible plan to harness the potential of this technology, whilst minimising risks.

In this half-day workshop, our learning and AI expert will cover the following:

- Overview of AI in e-learning - benefits and risks
- Demonstration of AI technologies for e-learning professionals
- Developing your strategic response to AI

This workshop is intended for senior decision makers and can accommodate up to 5 attendees per session. You'll come away with an up-to-date understanding of this rapidly evolving space and a draft strategy for your organisation.

Your facilitator will be David Kerrigan, a technology and learning analyst who has written 8 books and lectures on AI at leading institutions around the world, including at Stanford.

David also consults with L&D teams across the globe and is passionate about harnessing technology and cognitive psychology to achieve better learning outcomes.
